Writers, Cast, and Production Crew: THE LAW CLUB

102 Years Young!

The Law Club was founded on April 10, 1914, as an organization of young (under 40), male members of the Denver Bar Association. It was to meet twice a month to discuss legal topics of interest to the members.

In 1939, for reasons that are obscure, a group of Law Club members began putting on entertainment at the annual meetings of the Colorado Bar Association. Early shows were put on during the first day luncheon. However, after World War II, the luncheon skits grew to full shows. These elaborate productions involved months of planning. Soon they, and not the staid biweekly meetings, became the hallmark of the Law Club. Archives of the Law Club are replete with both written and photographic records featuring many of today's distinguished judges, as well as today's respected founders and senior partners of some of Colorado's most prestigious law firms, making fools of themselves in public at Law Club shows.

The Club continues to write, produce and perform its own brand of irreverent musical satire before a variety of audiences in the Colorado Front Range.

The Law Club still holds monthly meetings, and topics of interest are still presented – and frequently CLE credit is now received for attending. The original limits as to gender and age have been set aside. Today, attorneys and law students throughout Colorado are eligible for membership and encouraged to join.

As a century of distinguished jurists, judges, and even one United States Supreme Court Justice has shown, Law Club membership is no impediment to a successful legal career.
